

COMPRESS AT TROY DESTROYED BY FIRE

SEVEN THOUSAND BALES OF COTTON AND NINE BOX CARS BURNED

The fire was discovered this morning at 5 o'clock and completely destroyed the Atlantic Compress, 3,000 bales of cotton and nine box cars which were on the compress siding. The flames have not been extinguished at 11 o'clock this morning.

The loss in cotton alone is estimated at approximately $200,000. The value of the press and the cars could not be learned. The entire damage is said to be about covered by insurance.

Several of the cars were loaded with cotton, and this loss will be suffered by the railroad, but it is likely insured. The majority of the cotton burned on the press was insured.

As to the origin of the fire, no one has been able to ascertain definitely, and the way the flames spread so rapidly is a mystery to the cotton men. The night watchmen at the press goes over the building every five minutes, but when the fire department reached the scene, it is reported that almost every bale under the shed was on fire. The cars caught later and the firemen were unable to check the spread of the flames to any extent.

The compress here was one of the largest in this section of the state, there being only one in the city, and the loss to the compress company alone will be millions.

LITTLE CHANGE IN MR. HILL'S CONDITION

The condition of Mr. J. R. Hill, who was taken to the hospital about a week ago, is about the same. His ailment might be from some kind of mental indigestion, or apoplexy. He is only conscious part of the time.

Instead of being cared for at the home of his son, E. H. Hill, his son-in-law, R. W. Lessey, took him to his home on Newton street.

Mr. Hill is about 77 years old, and has been in excellent health up until recently.

H. H. MEADOWS ENDS LIFE

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 23.—H. H. Meadows, aged 34, a prominent business man of Atlanta, committed suicide today by strangling in a sanitarium at Smyrna, near here. The cords of a bath robe were tied tightly about his neck when the body was found. The sanitarium is for treatment of nervous afflictions.

Joe Espy, Jr., of Abbeville, is here today.

TALK IT OVER WITH THEM

There is really nothing to keep Troy street from being paved with the brick the contractors have left over, except obtaining the consent of the property owners along this street. This would be necessary with the usual course was pursued, that of passing the proposition and advertising it. But that is all. The contractor and the city have agreed, and the contractor has given the consent of the property owners. This takes the lion's share of the contractors will be moved before that time passes. So the only thing to do is to get the consent of the half-dozen men sent of the half-dozen men and pave it now. If it isn't done now, it will be a year or two more, and it can be done mighty cheap now. A very low price has been made on the work. Why not see the owners and talk it over?

The fire department was called this afternoon to Westover, on account of burning grass out there. No damage was done.

Eight-room dwelling, one block from town, on principal street, $2,500.00 is the price, subject to being unsold. Modern conveniences. Dell & Smith. 21-23

FLIES TO HEIGHT OF 9,970 FEET

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 23.—J. Armstrong Drexel and his plane attained a record height of 9,970 feet when he climbed about 11 miles into the air. The plane was unable to fly higher because of the limited atmosphere. The climb in the record book is a barograph run at a 9,970 feet, which was accepted as a new record by the removal from the world's record book of the 10,000 feet climb of E. J. R. Hannon, barograph of the National Association of Aeronautics, and of Jones F. Norton and America and Jamesburg, Pa. The secretary of that body, the barograph, as a result of instrument is the same one which Johnston earned when he made a former record of 9,714 feet at Belmont Park on October 31. It was brought to this city under sent by Mr. Duffy in order that the record made would be official. Drexel left the aviation field at Point Breeze in the extreme southern part of the city at 3:24. He landed at Greeland, about twenty miles north of the spot where he started at 4:46. In his climb he traveled at least thirty miles to the northward, for when he started to descend, after trying for fifteen minutes to force the machine higher, he glided down a distance which he estimated to be about six miles.

E. B. Askew, of Arlington, Va., is spending Thanksgiving in the city with friends.

ATLANTA POSTAL MEN REMOVED FROM OFFICE

RESULT OF GROSS IRREGULARITIES IN WEIGHING NEWSPAPER MAIL

Washington, Nov. 23.—Postmaster General Hitchcock today ordered the removal from the Atlanta post office of the postal clerks, as a result of postmaster is the same one which Johnston earned when he made a former record of 9,714 feet at Belmont Park on October 31. It was brought to this city under sent by Mr. Duffy in order that the record made would be official. Drexel left the aviation field at Point Breeze in the extreme southern part of the city at 3:24. He landed at Greeland, about twenty miles north of the spot where he started at 4:46. In his climb he traveled at least thirty miles to the northward, for when he started to descend, after trying for fifteen minutes to force the machine higher, he glided down a distance which he estimated to be about six miles.

The order followed an investigation of the Atlanta office into irregularities which the postoffice department declared covered several years, and resulted in the loss of many thousand dollars to the department. The department announced that in connection with this order, a general investigation into the method of weighing second-class mail throughout the country is now being conducted by the inspectors with an idea of bringing to an end such irregularities as those disclosed at Atlanta. Because of inefficiency in the discharge of his duties, the superintendent of the railway mail service at Atlanta, L. M. Terrell, who failed to take the precautionary methods required by the postal

To Month's More

Two months more will tell the question in Alabama. It will not tell the question in the United States, but it will at least put things in motion for another change.

Those people who wanted to see the prohibition laws given a fair showing, a year ago, but who did not want prohibition written in the constitution will now claim that it had the showing and came up lacking.

For several days we have been at a loss to know what the matter with Montgomery and Birmingham. There is undue activity. It may be that Mayor Exum, of Birmingham, believes in the enforcement of the prohibition laws, and it may be that Governor Comer's activity in moving around Montgomery has put the sheriff at work in that county.

Then we may all be wrong, it may be a deeper laid plot.

One thing is settled, and that is nearly all of those who wanted prohibition as had as any of us, but who didn't want the constitution burdened with a lot of laws, are now in favor of taking whisky straight for most of the towns in Alabama. They all know that Montgomery, Birmingham and Mobile will have liquor as quick as the machinery can be put into operation. Many think that towns of Dothan's size will not stand for granting something to those cities without having some of the good stuff.

Then the question is—already being discussed generally—which will we have, open saloons or dispensaries?

There are those who want the dispensary alright, for the revenue it turns in, but when it comes to whacking up the profits with other sections of the county they buck. They want the whole hog. Then to keep the money close in there are some who want saloons straight.

And all of these questions will be up for settlement during the next two or three months, and while some of us had reasons to rejoice that politics were over for a while we can see now that some real hot politics are just around the corner.

The voters of this county had as well get to figuring out what they will take, whether dispensary or saloons. This idea would have been bootled a year ago, about now. Few men then claimed that they wanted whisky to come back.

Those who claim that the prohibition laws have been a failure are obliged to admit that it's the enforcement or them, and not the laws.

You can find towns that are as dry as a double hole, but they are towns where the city officials spend sleepless nights annoying the bootleggers.

Do Your Work Better Every Day.

The Alabama editor who has been running his thumb under the single wraps of the various papers that come to his office for any length of time can always tell how much time the editor gives to the paper. Some of the papers look like the editor paid for each line shooting and talking politics, running and talking after him. The editor who does his paper for himself, the man who makes his own paper, that is his work that he has done and he paid for it. He is a better man than the man who makes his paper for others.

A man should do his kind of job his best work. If he works in a shop he ought to take good care of that ox, ought to feed him well and follow the yoke and buy every morning.

If one runs a railroad he not only should run it so as to make dividends for the stockholders but run it so that he can set aside a sinking fund in the way of good will to the people who do business with that road. That is the best sinking fund.

If one cleans trash from the streets and carts it off, he should do the job well, or if one cuts briars in the jams of the fence he ought to give brier cutting his undivided attention, and not be running switches in every rat hole he finds to see the field mouse pop out of the ground.

It is the competent man—the careful man, that is kept busy at good wages these days.

Some editors don't write red hot editorials each day, or each week, but they put up their news matter in good shape, and their ads don't look like the office boy solicited them, wrote the copy and set the type.

The man who is out of a job is always the man who is either physically disabled, a booze fighter, or incompetent. No man can be excused for not knowing how to do some one thing well, so well, in fact, till his services will be in demand.

Birmingham is screamingly drunk this week on happiness. And from the reports of the blind tiger raids in that city, happiness, or imagination is about the only thing one could get drunk on in Alabama's hundred thousand city.

Governor elect Foss of Massachusetts, has come out in the papers with a statement denouncing the resignation of Senator Lodge. Foss threatens to slump the stuff if something isn't done.

Turkeys were in demand today. Thanksgiving dinners but they could do in the hope that they made people pay a lot for their lives.

You might call this Indian Summer, but you might call it in Alabama winter, which is good enough with a way of wealth.

It is a mighty pretty weather to be carrying on work on the payment building.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Holloway and Mrs. W. C. Fritter were in the city yesterday.

A PRETTY COMPLIMENT

The following pretty compliment paid Mrs. W. C. Fritter, of this city, representative to the State Federation of Clubs which has been in session in Birmingham, appeared in the social columns of The Montgomery Advertiser this morning.

One of the most striking personalities on the floor of the convention is Mrs. Fritter, of Dothan, who was made second vice president. Said Mrs. Michael Gady of the Montgomery Music Club:

She is not only a woman of marked distinction in appearance but of marked distinction in character.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS

You can judge a woman by the things you like best.

Yours may be a bed of roses, but beware of the thorns.

It is easy to believe anything that is of no importance.

You can interest people in you by being interested in them.

A good man isn't always clever and a clever man isn't always good.

Bitter keep your temper, it is worth more to you than any one else.

If you are master of yourself you have a servant you can depend upon.

Some women are beautiful because of their clothes and some in spite of them.

An honest man goes through the world without getting any more than is coming to him.

And many a woman seems able to love a man most when he is the least deserving of her love.

When a young man tells a girl she is pretty she proceeds to give an imitation of being surprised.

Even on a dry day an inexperienced man who ventures into the haunts of high finance can become well soaked.

You can please a woman by telling her she looks like a picture—although she knows there are some horrid pictures.

When a woman begins by saying, "I'm going to tell you something for your own good," prepare to hear something disagreeable.

WHEN THE LIGHTS WENT OUT

Last night just as everybody was about to attend the show at the prayer meeting, just as the barber shops were full of anxious customers who wanted to brush up a little for Thanksgiving, some of them being shaved on one side of the face, while the other side was left like a street sweeper; just as the day's work in order to be able to go hunting today; just as the night students of the Campbell Institute were overtaxing their brains with study, and, just, during the main part of the night, about 8:30, the lights went out.

In an interview with the light man, he stated that a pipe had burst and that the lights would be on in a few minutes, but the second pipe must have given away. As dark as the night was, there was no light whatever in the down town district, and it was with many difficulties that the pedestrians made their way thru the busy, bustling little metropolis.

During the short interval of midnightness that prevailed for about thirty minutes, several shots were fired by some unknown person down in the Poplar Head part of town, therefore driving the majority of people to the up-town part, just in time to see a lamp explode in the hands of John L. Domingus, the popular young mail carrier. Fortunately Mr. Domingus was not hurt by the explosion, and managed to put several feet between him and the flaming torch.

The lights came back at right later on, but the merchants had sold out of candles by the time the brilliant rays flooded the almost deserted streets.

But the inevitable will happen.

PRICE OF A COUNT

COMES TOO HIGH

Birmingham, Nov. 23. Faked titles are at a discount in Birmingham. J. L. Mabey, president of the Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Company and a hard-headed man of business, is said to have given the "Zakidoo" sign to Count Marinho de Nascimento of Portugal, whose marriage to Mr. Mabey's daughter, Miss Elizabeth, had been set for today.

The non-magnate disagreed violently with the count in regard to a marriage settlement. Rumor has it that the nobleman, claiming at first to be actuated only by the sincerest and most disinterested affection for the fair Birmingham girl, put off his financial demands till the date and arrangements for the marriage had been completed.

Although the count is a scion of a family as old as the House of Braganza itself, his title is somewhat clouded by the fact that the new Portuguese republic has announced that all patents of nobility will be abolished. Count Marinho therefore, has no standing as a noble in his home country.

It is reported here that a large number of Portuguese nobles are now in this country, or will soon come over to search for wealthy wives. Under the monarchy, the Portuguese nobility waxed fat and prosperous from the labor of the poor, but that condition no longer exists, and many men with imposing titles now find themselves forced to choose between marrying American heiresses or going to work.

RUEF MUST SERVE COURT'S SENTENCE

SALOON KEEPER RUNS A TUCK

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 23. William Griffith, a saloon keeper, enraged over his conviction on charges of running a tuck here tonight, killed one man and wounded two others. He then hurried to his room in a downtown hotel and stood off the citizens.

When a posse, headed by two women, broke into the room, Griffith was found dead, lying face downward on the floor. The soundwork of the room was riddled with bullets, one of which is thought to have killed him.

Both the wounded men will probably die.

A GUARANTEED ATTRACTION

The first of the big important road shows to sever connection with the much vaunted theatrical syndicate and establish itself on an independent footing was the W. I. Swain Company. The name of Swain has been synonymous for many years with high class and elaborate productions, many of his most conspicuous successes having been of a western type. A thorough knowledge of western and frontier life endows him with a peculiar fitness to respond to the enormous demand of amusement seekers to be brought in close touch with the boundless west. The company's shows are a pledge to the cause of the western. These shows in fact, unto themselves. Such scenes and people are portrayed by the Swain Shows with absolute fidelity to the real article. In many of the members of the W. I. Swain Shows claim the Far West as their nativity.

The W. I. Swain Show Company will appear in Dothan for one week, commencing Monday, November 28, under the largest canvas pavilion ever constructed for a similar enterprise. The opening production will be Nick Carter.

The mock trial was carried out with great success, and the speeches made by Meyers, Harris and Blumberg were fine. Mr. Coy Hutton, charged with a snare three geese from Mr. L. Meyrovitz, was proven innocent, but he was fined a goose feast to be given in honor of the jury.

The society has decided to get sterling silver pins.

Black Diamonds

Black diamonds are pure carbon and yet in no outward appearance resemble the diamonds which we are accustomed to wear as ornaments. They are slightly harder than the crystal or gem diamonds and, in fact, about the hardest substance known. Black diamonds or carbons are among the greatest curiosities of the mineral kingdom. They are without crystalline form and are found in irregular pieces ranging in size from half a carat to 300, 400 or 500 carats. They are dark gray, black or brownish in color and opaque. The real diamond of the jewelry trade is also pure carbon, but translucent and crystalline in form. Two objects so alike in composition, says George E. Walsh in the Scientific American, could not be found so opposite in appearance as these two forms of carbon.

A Hardy One.

He was an amateur gardener of the very green order. Nevertheless he felt he had been cheated over the last batch of seeds he had purchased and had called on the florist to make a complaint. After he had ended his grumble he began to ask a floral question.
"Oh, by the way," he said, "what is a hardy rose?"
"It is one," growled the dealer, "that doesn't mind your wife pulling it up by the roots every day to see if it has begun to grow yet."—London Telegraph.

SERVANTS IN GERMANY.

The Character Book Which is Under Police Supervision.

Among the many domestic problems that Germany has solved to its own satisfaction is that of the giving or refusing of a "character" to a servant. The following statement of the system in vogue in Germany shows how completely it answers its purpose:

Every man or woman seeking to enter the service of another, whether as laborer, clerk or domestic servant, is under obligation to procure a service book, which after purchase must be officially stamped by the police authorities. The authorities enter in the book a description of the laborer, his age, his previous employment, his criminal record, if any, and his general character.

When the laborer enters the service of a new employer, the employer must enter in the book the date of his engagement, the nature of the work required and the wages given.

The employer retains the book as long as the engagement lasts and on handing it back makes another entry, "Left my service on such a date," with a few lines as to character and the servant's reasons for leaving.

Thus the character book goes round, and the servant has never the uncomfortable necessity of asking her mistress for a recommendation. Forged characters are practically impossible, since the whole system is under police supervision.

Destitution in old age among domestic servants and the lower class of artisans has become an impossibility in Germany, for within the last fifteen years or so it has been made compulsory for all who earn less than $500 a year to insure themselves against want after their working lives are over.—Harper's Weekly.

Basil Clark left last night for Enterprise, where he will spend a few days in interest of the Grant Clothing Company.
